

You have harvested a big crop this year. You would be able to afford three treats if the farm were yours but you have to give two-thirds of your income to the owner of the land who lives in a big house in the city.

Take one treat

Your family owns and runs a small business. Because you all have worked quite hard, you have done quite well.

You may have only one treat instead of the two you got last year.

Your father has just lost his job in a factory that makes cloth. The wealthy country which has been buying decided they should produce more of their own cloth.

Take no treat.

Your family's food bills have greatly increased this year because of large orders for grain and Soya beans have gone to fatten beef cattle in a wealthy country.

Take two treats, but eat only one.

Your family's food bills have greatly increased this year because of large orders for grain and Soya beans have gone to fatten beef cattle in a wealthy country.

Take two treats, but eat only one.

At the end of the game, give your second treat to the person who got the most.

Your father has a good job but he must pay school fees for you and your three brothers.

Take only one treat.

Your family has just inherited a great deal of money from a wealthy relative.

You can have 12 treats. Eat as many of them as you can as quickly as you can.

Although your family is not one of the wealthiest in the village, they have spent a lot of money for your grandfather's funeral. It would have been considered disrespectful if they hadn't.

Take no treat.

All of your family's income this year was needed to cover the just hospital bill when you had a broken leg.

Take only one treat.

Your father works on a fishing boat, but the fish he catches are sold to feed the poor of wealthy people.

Take two treats but eat only one. At the end of the game, give your second treat to the person who got the most.

Your father works at an iron mine. Raising his wages would mean that the company would have fewer profits for the owners in wealthy countries.

Take only one treat.

Ever since your father had malaria, he has been too weak to work. Your mother is dead.

Take no treat.

Your parents both work. Although their wages are not high, you can afford six treats.

Eat as many as you can as quickly as you can.

Your father can't get a job because he cannot read or write (there was no school in your village when he was young).

Take no treat.

Even though both your parents are unemployed, they get insurance payments.

You may have four treats. Eat as many of them as you can as quickly as you can.

A flood wiped out your family's crops and you have no money.

Take no treat.

Your family's crop was mostly eaten by locusts this year and you couldn't afford pesticide.

Take no treat.

Because of the efforts of a Canadian well driller, your village now has water to use on the field.

You can now afford one treat.

Your parents both have tuberculosis and are too ill to work.

Take no treat.

Your family's small farm produced very little this year because fertiliser costs were too high for you to afford.

Take no treat.

Your family grows coffee. Since the crop was very good this year, there is a surplus and the price has fallen.

You may have only one treat instead of the two you got last year.

You have just graduated from school and were lucky enough to get a job. However you need all your money to help send your brother to school.

Take no treat.

Your father just got a big wage increase.

You may take seven treats.

Eat as many of them as you can as quickly as you can.

Your father got free schooling and now has a very good job.

Take 10 treats and eat as many as you can as fast as you can.

A teacher taught your family how to keep a few chickens to provide eggs to improve your health.

You can now afford one treat.

You have just helped the family harvest the crop. It has been very hard work.

You can now afford one treat.

Your father is blind because of an infection of the water. Your mother cannot work because she has no one to look after the children.

Take no treat.

There was such a bad drought that the crops your family planted didn't grow.

You cannot afford a treat.